Foreword to 2013 Commemorative Set

LexisNexis presents the 2013 republication of the District of Columbia Official Code, 2001 Edition to the D.C. bench and bar and to the citizens of the District of Columbia in a sincere belief that it will prove a material contribution to the orderly and efficient conduct of the government of the District and to the practice of law. LexisNexis is proud to help commemorate the 40th anniversary of Home Rule for the District of Columbia.

LexisNexis continues its tradition of excellence with its District of Columbia Official Code, 2001 Edition. This 2013 Volume 23 replaces any existing Volume 23 of the 2001 Edition and its 2012 Supplement, both of which may now be discarded, recycled, or retained for historical reference. Future supplements will be keyed to this 2013 Volume and not to any of its predecessors.

The District of Columbia Official Code, 2001 Edition, represents the eighth compilation of the laws of the District of Columbia and reflects an extensive renumbering of the 1981 Edition. Users should consult the historical citations at the end of each statute, and corresponding amendment notes, as guides to legislative currency. Research features such as case annotations, section references, effect of legislation notes, editor's notes, and the comprehensive index have been prepared by LexisNexis. Your set is kept up to date through regular supplementation, free access to the on-line Official Code at http://www.lexisnexis.com/hottopics/dccode and the periodic replacement of volumes. All case citations are Shepardized for accuracy and continued relevance. LexisNexis also publishes a District of Columbia Advance Legislative Service (ALS). The ALS gives you the latest session laws as they are passed, along with tables showing you which sections of the Code are affected.

We actively solicit your comments and suggestions. If you have questions or comments about the statutes, or if you have suggestions regarding index improvements, please write to us or call us toll-free at 1-800-833-9844; fax us toll free at 1-800-643-1280; E-mail us at customersupport@bender.com; or visit our website at http://www.lexisnexis.com. By providing us with your informed comments, you will be assured of having a working tool which increases in value each year.

PREFACE TO THE 2001 EDITION

The 2001 Edition of the District of Columbia Official Code marks the eighth time that a compilation of the laws of the District of Columbia has been published by, or under the authority of, the government of the District of Columbia or that of the United States. The District of Columbia Code was first published in 1929; eleven years later, the Second Edition (1940) was published; another eleven years later, the Third Edition (1951); ten years later, the Fourth Edition (1961); six years later, the Fifth Edition (1967); another six years later, the Sixth Edition (1973); and 8 years later, the Seventh Edition (1981) was published. The time between the publication of the Seventh Edition and this Eighth Edition represents the longest period, by almost a decade, that the District of Columbia Code has gone unrevised in its 72 year history.

The District's Charter, which in 1973, established the current tripartite government of the District of Columbia, makes it incumbent upon the legislative branch to publish and codify every act of the Council, as the Council directs, upon becoming law, so that the residents of the District may have ready access to the laws by which they are governed. In 1973, however, the framers of the District's constitution could not have foreseen the incredible technological advances that would occur in the next 25 years nor the impact they have on the Code.

With the close of the 20th Century the world has witnessed the triumph of the Information Age, the rise of the World Wide Web, and the explosion of word processing and data storage technology. These phenomena have helped make the reproduction of legal text and data a fast, easy, and inexpensive enterprise, giving rise to a plethora of publishing mediums, and have made it a relatively simple task to reproduce existing legal text, including the District of Columbia Code. The rapid rise of the Computer Age has allowed virtually anyone with an ordinary personal computer to reproduce and compile the laws of the District of Columbia.

The laws of the District, however, are fluid, not stagnant, as they are amended several times each year. The quality and accuracy of publications not directed by the Council are beyond its control. The Council can only warrant the Code for which it has authorized publication. Therefore, in order to ensure that the residents of the District may distinguish between the compilation of District laws as produced under the direction of the elected officials of the District of Columbia and those of other persons, we have added the word "Official" to the title of the Code. Also to ensure that the Council never loses the right to publish its own laws, the government of the District of Columbia has retained the copyright to the District of Columbia Official Code.

The codified laws of the District of Columbia are created as a result of legislative action on the part of 13 individuals elected by the residents of the District of Columbia to enact the laws that govern the District, and by the Congress. Once the legislative process is complete, the Council, through its delegation of authority to its Office of the General Counsel, codifies the laws in the form of this Code. In the process of codification, the Office of the General Counsel interprets any discrepancies in the drafting of the laws using commonly recognized rules of statutory construction. No other entity is authorized by law to make these determinations. As set forth by federal law and recognized by the Courts of the District of Columbia, this Code establishes prima facie evidence of the laws in force in the District of Columbia.[1] It is this continuity of authority, from enactment to codification to judicial review that gives this Code its authenticity and officiality as the content of the laws of the District of Columbia.

The 2001 Edition represents a recodification of the 1981 Edition in that it contains a reorganization of the presentation of the laws, inclusion of some previously omitted legal provisions, and the omission of non-substantive extraneous provisions. The theory behind the recodification is to purify the organization of the Code which over many decades has seen the haphazard mixing of original ("organic") provisions of laws throughout the Code. In the 2001 Edition, we have established a system of codification that follows the legislative drafting principals established over many years in the Council's Office of the General Counsel.

The recodification is not an overhaul of the Code. Although a cleanup of the antiquated, repealed and omitted provisions is long overdue, it is not the province of the Office of the General Counsel to determine which laws should be expunged as obsolete. Such decisions should be left to a working group commissioned by the Council to recommend revisions to the Code. The Office of the General Counsel has simply separated the organic laws into discrete divisions and topical categories. As much as is possible, we have followed a rule that requires that all organic law remain intact: closely following the layout of the originating act. We have retained notes to repealed sections to aid in legal research and preserved the numbering style that was first introduced in the Second Edition. Thanks to the resourcefulness of the publisher and the Council's Office of the General Counsel staff, we have corrected provisions of law erroneously added to, or deleted from, prior editions.

The Code is organized into eight Divisions of practical law: government organization; judicial organization; decedent estates; criminal law; business law; education; property; and general laws. Each division is subdivided by subject matter called Titles, organic laws, called Chapters and Subchapters, and finally, individual Sections representing the individual sections of organic law. Occasionally, Subtitles are used to organize chapters of organic law, Units to organize subchapters, and Parts and Subparts to organize the additional divisions within the organic law. One important change that the user will notice, and hopefully appreciate, is that the District's Charter, the Home Rule Act, is codified in its entirety in one location so that the framework of the current District government can be readily found. We hope that the organization of the 2001 Edition of the District of Columbia Official Code will serve as a foundation for further refinement by future law revision commissions or their equivalent.

The 2001 Edition has been prepared under the supervision of Benjamin. F. Bryant, Jr., Codification Counsel, Office of the General Counsel, Council of the District of Columbia.

PARALLEL REFERENCE TABLE
[1973 EDITION TO 1981 EDITION]

This table accounts for all of the sections of the District of Columbia Code which appeared in the 1973 Edition by indicating their disposition in the 1981 Edition.

The citations from the 1973 Edition are given in the first column. The citations appearing in the second column indicate the treatment of the sections in the 1981 Edition. In most instances, the citations appearing in the second column reflect the location of the corresponding sections from the 1973 Edition, unless some other disposition is noted.

For corresponding provisions of the 1981 Edition contained in the 2001 Edition, see the Parallel Reference Table [1981 Edition to 2001 Edition] at the beginning of this volume.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA LAWS DISPOSITION TABLE

This table accounts for enactments of the permanent laws of the District of Columbia, beginning with Council Period I, which affect sections of the District of Columbia Official Code appearing in the 2001 Edition. This table does not account for any of the temporary laws or emergency acts. The entries throughout this table reflect and are derived from the historical citations which appear following the text of each section in the 2001 Edition. Redesignations and recodifications effected by later legislative acts or the District of Columbia Codification Counsel are not reflected in this table.

D.C. LAWS NOT CODIFIED TABLE

This table accounts for D.C. Laws enacted by the Council of the District of Columbia since January 1, 1982, which are not codified in the District of Columbia Official Code, 2001 Edition, but which have been published in the District of Columbia Register (DCR) or the District of Columbia Municipal Regulations (DCMR).

The D.C. Laws Not Codified Table includes D.C. Acts that were repealed or disapproved prior to their final approval date.

The table is to be used as follows: The first column denotes the D.C. Law number or Act number where indicated; the second column sets forth the short title of the D.C. Law or Act; the third column indicates the section, where applicable, of the D.C. Law or Act; and the final column indicates, by applicable citation, where published.
